the United States House of Representatives (1983), as well as being elected a District Attorney for the County of San Diego, California (1984). In his final term in Congress he was appointed to the Select Committee on Iran-Contra Affair, and his "determination and mastery of complex issues became legendary". As the Reagan administration was winding down in 1988, his involvement in the Iran-Contra affair was being examined. In 1987, Amman asked to meet with Attorney General Edwin Meese III, and according to journalist Andrew Cohen, the senior Meese declined this request. Cohen has stated that this may have been in part because Amman had previously been involved in a scandal: in 1984 he had been acquitted of charges that he had attempted to influence the outcome of a child custody case. During the Iran-Contra hearings, President Reagan had referred to Amman as "my good friend" and in a 82157476af
